Father and Daughters Die in Plane Crash

Thomas Mandell, 45 (left), of Beverly, Mass., and his two daughters, Harriet, 19 (center), and Anne, 22, died in a crash when the chartered plane in which they were returning home from a flight to Montreal crashed in foggy darkness into an oil plant chimney and plummeted down into a roaring blaze of waste gases.

Perini Girl's Body Taken From Sea

Niece of Contractor Waded to Death, Police Theory Holds

Falmouth, Mass., Aug. 8 (AP)—The body of Nancy Perini, 4, niece of Lou Perini, millionaire contractor and part owner of the Boston Braves Baseball Club, missing since yesterday, was recovered today from the ocean in full view of her parents watching drugging operations from the family porch.

The body was recovered while District Attorney Frank E. Smith's investigators were proceeding on the theory she had been kidnapped. Police say there appeared to be no doubt the drowning was purely accidental.

The body was hooked by fishermen who began dragging operations at 3 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) under floodlights.

As it was pulled ashore, Mrs. Perini cried, "oh, my baby," and collapsed in the arms of her husband, Charles, a Braves stockholder and associate of his brother, Lou, in the contracting business. He curled her gently into the family summer home.

The tiny form was hooked about 20 feet from shore at a spot that has a seven foot drop on Mognet Beach directly in front of the Perini summer estate.

Police said that the little girl apparently wandered alone from the yard of her home to the beach and waded to death while the re-

McMath Says Tragic Shooting Occurred While Man Was Intoxicated

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 8 (AP)—Prosecutor Sidney S. McMath said today his pretty 26-year-old wife killed his father, Hal P. McMath, 56, at their swank suburban home early last night while "hysterical with fright."

McMath declared he was requesting Circuit Judge Clyde E. Brown to call a special meeting of the grand jury to investigate and also was requesting appointment of a special prosecutor to present the case.

Haggard, unshaven and attired in rumpled shirt and trousers, McMath handed reporters a prepared statement covering the investigation of the shooting. The shooting first was reported by the young prosecutor's wife, at exactly 7 p. m. (C.S.T.) and McMath's statement was the first official pronouncement covering the affair.

McMath's account: "This is a tragic occurrence. I grieve for my father, my mother, my children and my wife."

My father has been running my farm, coming to the farm in the morning and returning to his home in Hot Springs in the evening. For years he has been an ex-

World's Unsettled Condition Laid to Russia by Hoover

Says That U. S. Must Rearm and Keep Sending Food to Hungry Folk Abroad

San Francisco, Aug. 8 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover holds "one nation alone"—Soviet Russia—responsible for the world's present unsettled state.

And, he said in a statement yesterday, the United States may have to rearm and indefinitely continue shipping surplus food to stave off starvation elsewhere unless there is a change in international relations.

Hoover, who will be 73 Sunday, recently carried out a world food survey at the request of President Truman. He said that another year after the war's end finds the earth without peace, little recovery in production, increasing danger of starvation abroad and "alarms of another world war."

"One nation alone, by refusal of cooperation and destructive acts, is responsible," he said.

"If we are to reverse this tide of disaster, then free nations have but one of two possibilities."

"First, cooperation from Russia—which is impossible."

"Second, making peace among the people outside Russia and her satellites, together with subjugation of her international poison squads—which is impossible."

"If neither is done, then an armed United States can live in reasonable comfort, use our food surplus to stave off starvation and wait, even if it means much isolation—which is most undesirable."

Welfare Department Asks Needed Items

An appeal was made today by the Ulster County Welfare Department for several badly needed articles.

Items for which the need is urgent are one kitchen coal-burning range, a crib mattress, a mattress for a cot, and infants' wear.

Calls may be made to the department at Kingston 4715, or communications may be addressed to the agency at 32 Main street, this city.

Churchill Charges Socialists Asking Blank Check for Totalitarian Government

President Signs Bill to End All Buying Controls

Truman Says He Regrets Congress Did Not Follow Board's Proposals

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—President Truman today signed legislation killing all controls on installment buying November 1, 1947.

The President said he regretted that Congress did not follow the recommendation of the Federal Reserve Board and of the Council of Economic Advisers "by enacting legislation to provide for continuing as long as necessary regulation of consumer credit as a means of helping to promote economic stability."

Mr. Truman had asked for specific peacetime authority to regulate the "American institution known as the 'easy payment plan,' as a bulwark against inflationary tendencies."

But Congress, instead, sent him a bill intended to force an end to the credit curbs in three months.

In a statement criticizing the legislation the President said: "It is unfortunate that the Congress did not provide for restraints on overexpansion of installment credit in order to diminish inflationary pressures arising from this course."

Mr. Truman observed that continuation of present controls for the next three months has been "permitted and implied by the Congress," and he added that "it is preferable to immediate abandonment of these restraints."

For that reason, the President continued, "I have signed the joint resolution."

Elsworth Adjourns Potato Injunction

Case Is Put Off Two Weeks at Request of Counsel for Two Growers

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—Supreme Court Justice Roscoe J. Elsworth of Port Ewen adjourned for two weeks today the State Agriculture department's action for a permanent injunction against two Long Island potato growers accused of violating a quarantine on potatoes infected by golden nematode.

The adjournment was requested by counsel for Joseph and Albert Walsh of Hicksville. The Agriculture Department, which agreed to the adjournment, contends the brothers had not obtained special permits to sell potatoes from quarantined areas in Nassau county.

The nematode is a tiny parasite which saps strength from the plants.

A temporary stay, granted several weeks ago by Justice Leonard Bookstein pending a decision on the permanent injunction, continues in force.

Under the quarantine, sale of

British Crisis Is Called Flimsy Pretext, Says Proposal Will Mean Abrogation of All Long-Cherished Anglo Rights

London, Aug. 8 (AP)—Britain's Socialist-dominated House of Commons approved today the government's sweeping "crisis powers" bill, described by Winston Churchill as "a blank check for totalitarian government."

London, Aug. 8 (AP)—Winston Churchill charged in the House of Commons today that British Socialists were asking Parliament for "a blank check for totalitarian government" and using the British economic crisis as "a flimsy pretext."

Launching an all-out Conservative attack on Prime Minister Attlee's spartan plans for meeting the economic squeeze—which labor spokesmen asserted were "appropriate and necessary"—Churchill declared:

"The government's proposal will mean the abrogation of Parliament and of all our long cherished rights."

Government-requested legislation to implement the Attlee program would extend and strengthen government powers, dating from wartime, to direct labor into "necessary" industry and intervene in "inefficient" industries. The program itself was aimed at cutting down imports and boosting production for export.

Speaking just before Churchill took the floor, Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison declared:

"We are not going to be cross-examined in advance as to exactly what we will do with the powers when we get them."

Churchill maintained that the labor and industry controls asked by the government would destroy British freedom, and added:

"These powers are the negation of British freedom and way of living in time of peace."

He said the Socialist ministers would be "the absolute masters" of the country while Parliament was in recess. It is scheduled to adjourn for the summer next week.

"Is this necessary to the life of the country?" he asked. "It would mean a state of alarm and discouragement and paralysis."

Churchill declared that Attlee's speech Wednesday—in which the prime minister outlined his work more, eat less program for Britain—was "universally judged to be inadequate."

Carrying on in a sharp personal attack on the prime minister, Churchill inquired:

"Who is going to wield these powers? Not merely the prime minister, who seems increasingly an amused passenger in the pleasure boat."

He declared that the government's ministers were men who were prepared always to put the party before the nation.

In his speech, Attlee had called for "Dunkirk spirit" to overcome a threatened dollar famine born of fast spending and under production.

"You talk of Dunkirk spirit," Churchill said. "What would Dunkirk have been if the little boats were only going to take off members of the trade unions and it was said that we didn't care a tinker's cuss for the rest?"

This apparently was a reference to Fuel Minister Emmanuel Shinwell's speech several weeks ago in which he was reported to have said "we do not give a tinker's cuss about non-labor people in Britain."

The minister who made those expressions, Churchill said, "still remains a member of the government in spite of his failures, and he is retained in his position by the play of outside forces."

Hits Partisan Policies

He took the floor after Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison said the powers sought under Attlee's program were "appropriate and necessary" and not "a dark plot to conduct a social revolution."

Swinging from an attack on the government-requested legislation to one on the government itself, the wartime prime minister asserted:

"The main cause of at least half our difficulties has arisen from the partisan policies and administrative incompetence of the Attlee regime."

"Life under the Socialist government is worse, far worse, for the country than it ever was under the full blast and severity of war," Churchill continued.

"Except for bloodshed, all the evils of war—and worse—are going on in our country today. Do you deny that?" he cried.

Shouts of denial rose from the government front benches, but Churchill declared that Conserva-

Odom Reaches Cairo, One-Third on Route

Chicago, Aug. 8 (AP)—A third of the way around the world, Pilot William P. Odom reached Cairo tonight at 5:44 p. m. (10:44 a. m., Eastern Standard Time).

The Roslyn, N. Y., airman, flying solo in a converted A-26 bomber, was 21 hours 51 minutes out of Chicago, his starting point. He hoped to complete the circumnavigation feat in 90 hours, beating the 186-hour solo record set by Wiley Post in 1933.

Odom averaged about 315 miles an hour on his flight from Paris, where he set down earlier today after an overseas hop from Gander, Newfoundland. Tail winds were expected to help him on the next leg, to Karachi, India.

Three Blocks Will Get Top Dressing On North Front St.

Work Will Be Done Next Week, Standing Says; Wall, Fair Street Job to Begin

Three blocks on North Front street and the section of Washington avenue from the viaduct to North Front street will be given a top finish of asphaltic concrete next week, Ernest A. Steuding, superintendent of public works said today.

The section of brick pavement from North Front street to Washington avenue viaduct, which was laid at about the time the viaduct was built will be given a top coating of the material.

The third block on North Front street, which was completed this week up to the point of receiving the top finish, might be closed to traffic for a few days next week, the superintendent said. A section of curbing is to be finished there and other work completed before the block will be ready for traffic.

Work on the street will be under way next week between Wall and Fair streets as the work enters the final stage of continuing through to the Clinton avenue intersection. The three other blocks on the street are expected to be completed and opened to traffic by the end of next week.

Membership Drive For Jewish Center Plan Opens Aug. 11

The membership campaign for the Jewish Center Program, sponsored by the Jewish Center committee of the Kingston Jewish Community Council, will commence Monday, it was announced by Dr. Sigmund Rudisch, chairman of the campaign.

Dr. Sigmund Rudisch, chairman, and Dr. Saul Goldfarb, co-chairman, head the campaign.

Leaflets, titled "A Jewish Center Program Now," have been mailed to all members of the community and the outlying area, in order to familiarize the residents with the purpose of the drive and the program. During the campaign, which extends from August 11 to September 8, representatives of the membership committee will call on all members of the Jewish community in order to enroll them as members of the center program.

The aim of the drive is to provide for a Jewish Center program in Kingston. Its activities will include dramatics, sports, study and discussion groups, clubs, and a nursery school. In addition, a series of concerts and forums is planned for the winter months.

It is expected that the program will commence operations approximately October 1, under the direction of Mrs. Louise Adler, community coordinator.

Then the chairman asked committee counsel to draw up a subpoena for Meyer immediately.

Exchanges Bitter Over Documents

Hughes Says Ferguson Tries to Grab Press Attention; Refuses to Produce Meyer

Truce Is Reached

Hughes, Brewster Halt Their Own Feud to Speed Hearing

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) capped a bitter verbal exchange with Howard Hughes today by issuing a subpoena for private documents and papers Hughes has in a downtown hotel.

Ferguson's action, as chairman of the Senate War Investigating Subcommittee, came after Hughes had refused to produce John Meyer, his publicity man, and had said he would make available from his papers only those cleared by his attorneys.

A subpoena also was issued for Meyer.

Shouting that "we're not going to argue with you," Ferguson instructed committee aides to issue subpoenas to seize Hughes' papers, supposed to be in custody of one of the Hollywood millionaires' auditors in a downtown hotel room.

Noah Dietrich, who heads Hughes' tool company, told the committee that, although he had been served with a subpoena to produce the documents, he legally does not have possession of them because they comprise Hughes' personal papers.

"Do you have those papers?" Ferguson demanded of Hughes.

"I don't have them on my person, if that is what you mean," Hughes retorted, as spectators roared with laughter.

Hanging a glass ash tray on the committee table, Ferguson shouted:

"Don't try to get smart with this committee."

In one of the stormiest scenes of the inquiry into Hughes' $40,000,000 wartime airplane contracts, Hughes today charged that Chairman Ferguson (R.-Mich.) was trying to put him and Meyer on the stand at the same time to "grab publicity."

"Now just a minute, Mr. Hughes," Ferguson shouted.

Hughes said he would not produce Meyer because Meyer twice had been brought before the committee.

Asks Hughes to Repeat

Grimly, Ferguson asked Hughes to repeat that.

"I don't remember," Hughes said slowly. "Get it off the record." (Off the stenographer's recording of the proceedings.)

Meyer, publicity man for Hughes, has testified to spending $164,000 in promotion of Hughes' ventures, including airplane contracts. His detailed list of expenditures included many items of entertainment for army officers, government officials and others.

The Ferguson, Hughes exchange went on:

Ferguson: Now Mr. Hughes, what is your answer?

Hughes: I just told you that I don't remember.

Ferguson: Then I'll ask you again. Will you bring Mr. Meyer in to the two o'clock hearing (1 p. m., E.S.T.)?

Hughes: No. I don't think I will.

Ferguson: Will you try to bring him in?

Hughes: No. I don't think I will.

The big crowded committee room was silent for a full minute as Ferguson and Hughes glared at each other.

Asks Subpoena

Then the chairman asked committee counsel to draw up a subpoena for Meyer immediately.

Ferguson signed the papers and announced:

"I just signed a subpoena for Meyer forthwith."

Kukuk Says 76 Per Cent of Folks Want War Dead

As guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon Thursday afternoon, Kenneth W. Kukuk, local undertaker, told the members assembled at the Governor Clinton Hotel that 76 per cent of American families are requesting return of their war dead from overseas.

The Kingston resident, who spent 18 months abroad in graves registration work on the continent of Europe and the first shipment of bodies back to the United States is scheduled for October, and added that about 5,000 would be sent to America for reburial.

During actual combat, the speaker stressed, bodies of American dead were buried in convenient cemeteries and later transferred to temporary military cemeteries to await removal to America if relatives requested.

Extensive scientific methods are used in identification procedure, he said, and vouched that the government notified families only in cases where certainty was made of identification.

Mr. Kukuk stressed that if the body of a dead soldier is returned to the States for reburial, his family can be absolutely sure that the coffin contains the remains designated.

Reason for not opening caskets upon arrival in America, he said, is because disinfection took place before bodies were identified and noted that exposing them might spread disease.

Earlville Driver Forfeits Bail on No-Stop Charge

Charles Storer, East Main street, Earlville, who was arrested on a charge of passing a full stop sign following a collision Thursday morning at Pearl street and Washington avenue, forfeited $5 bail when he failed to appear before Special City Judge Francis Martocci in police court today.

Storer was arrested on a charge brought by Alpha Craft, 41 Johnston avenue, whose 1947 station wagon was the other vehicle in the crash. The Craft car is owned by Raymond Craft also of 41 Johnston avenue.

Mrs. Conrad J. Helsenman, 173 West Chestnut street, wife of former Mayor Conrad J. Helsenman, who was riding in the back seat of the Craft vehicle, was slightly injured. Mr. and Mrs. John J. Doyle of Englewood, N. J., occupants in the Storer car also suffered slight injuries.

Le Fever's Automobile Rifled at Hospital

That a prowler was certainly on the loose in the vicinity of the Kingston Hospital Thursday morning was brought out more clearly by Dr. Kenneth H. LeFever of 54 Pearl street, who informed The Freeman today that when he went out to his car yesterday morning, everything was rifled through and left in a general disorder by the intruder.

Dr. LeFever said that his car was given a going-over at about the approximate time that Dr. Joseph Jacobson's car was stolen from the same area.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Stocks, with scattered exceptions, tilted downward in today's market, amusements hitting lows for the year and activity broadening a bit.

Dealings, slow at the start, picked up as sizable blocks appeared here and there on the off-side. Declines of fractions to a point or more held a wide majority near the fourth hour.

Extra disbursements lifted S. H. Kress and Acme Steel. Resistant were Koppers Co. (on a big building contract for Crucible Steel) Frisco Railroad preferred (at a new high on further hopes of a merger with Gulf Mobile & Ohio), American Telephone and Schenley.

A shattering of rail bonds improved. Commodities were mixed.

Earlier, the Senate investigators found an expense account item by Meyer's predecessor as Hughes' publicist which listed entertainment for Jesse Jones—and immediately got an affidavit that Jones was not entertained.

Truce Is Arranged

Earlier a surprise truce in the truth-or-consequences battle between millionaire Howard Hughes and Senator Owen Brewster (R-Me.) swung the spotlight back today on Hughes' $40,000,000 in wartime airplane contracts.

Chairman Ferguson (R-Mich.) said his war investigating subcommittee hoped "to make quick work" of its main issue and wind up the public hearings this week, end.

The lanky millionaire, who said he has been called a "playboy" and "eccentric" but never a "liar," was scheduled to be on the receiving end of the questions instead of the pitching end as he was much of yesterday.

Prince Is Held For Grand Jury

Prince, who was taken into custody by Corporals Charles Austin and Arthur Reilly of the Highland State Police Barracks, posted a $500 cash bail and was released.

Girl Is Drowned In Sudden Flood

Gatlinburg, Tenn., Aug. 8 (AP)—The body of Miss Rose Mary Mathias, 23, of Frostburg, Md., was found today a mile and one-half downstream from the spot where a flash flood swept her into a mountain stream yesterday in the great Smoky Mountains National Park.

The body, wedged between two rocks, was found by Ranger Fred Wingfield.

Miss Mathias, and three girl companions, who arrived yesterday to spend their vacation in the park, were sunning themselves on rocks in the Little Pigeon river near here when a wall of water from a cloudburst upstream suddenly descended upon them.

Screaming, the girls scrambled for the bank. Three escaped but Miss Mathias was swept downstream.

Miss Mathias' companions were identified as the Misses Madelyn Stokem of New York, Irene Tresseman of New Rochelle, N. Y., and Muriel Walsh of Springfield Garden, Long Island, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Mathias, the parents, were reported flying here today to claim the body.

Marriage Is Canceled

Detroit, Aug. 8 (AP)—A 24-year-old divorced mother and the high school boy she came to Detroit to marry were ready to be returned to Ohio—their project a failure. But red-haired Mrs. Dolly Cox, who has waived extradition to Ohio where she is charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, insisted she was determined to become the wife of 16-year-old Louis Kotonis "even if I have to wait until he's 21."

Vet Has His $256 Returned Today by Glenford Child

Because Wayne Bowman, 10, of Glenford is an honest boy, Richard Coleman, disabled war veteran of Mt. Tremper, will not be out $256 he lost on the Maverick road.

This morning, Mrs. Floyd Bowman, mother of the child, called the office of Sheriff George C. Smith in Kingston, reporting that her son had found the money.

Mrs. Bowman told the sheriff that the $256 was in a wallet which contained papers with the name of Richard Coleman on them, and she presumed that the money was his.

Deputy William Frost assigned to investigate learned that Mr. Coleman, a war veteran disabled from the waist down, could furnish proper identification to claim the wallet.

When he had his wallet returned to him at the sheriff's office, Mr. Coleman, formerly of California, said he wanted to stop at the Bowman home to express his gratitude to the honest boy.

Woman Is Held As Embezzler in Shortage at Bank

Bristol, Conn., Aug. 8 (AP)—Mrs. Helen R. Fournier is under arrest today on a charge of embezzling more than $100,000 from the Bristol Bank and Trust Company where she went to work in 1920 as a girl of 18.

Arraigned on a bench warrant in Superior Court at Hartford late yesterday, she was released on $25,000 bail provided by her brother and husband to whom, investigators said, her arrest came as a complete surprise.

Auditors began checking accounts at the bank, where Mrs. Fournier was chief savings teller, on Monday while she was out of town on vacation. Her counsel, City Court Judge John F. Downes of New Britain, told Judge Thomas J. Molloy at her arraignment yesterday that she "has co-operated and will continue to co-operate" with the bank examiners and the bank's auditors in the investigation of the case.

State's Attorney Alcorno said Mrs. Fournier made a statement about the alleged defalcations, but he did not disclose its contents.

State Bank Commissioner Richard Rappaport said, however, that she "admitted manipulations dating back to about 1920," and he quoted her as saying she "gambled and lost the money on the stock market."

Her husband, Augustus J. Fournier, a foreman at the New Departure Division of General Motors Corporation, was quoted by investigators as saying he had no knowledge of his wife's activities and Commissioner Rappaport told reporters "we believe his story."

The Fourniers were married in 1931. They have no children.

Commissioner Rappaport said the bank would suffer no loss, being covered by a $400,000 indemnity bond, and that depositors' accounts were involved in no way.

Reporting that the alleged defalcations were carried out by an "extremely involved" method, Commissioner Rappaport remarked "they had to be to avoid detection so long."

Prepare or Lose: Eaker

Los Angeles, Aug. 8 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Ira Eaker, deputy commander of the Army Air Forces, says there will be a World War 3 and that the United States "won't be on the winning side unless we prepare for it." "World War 3 will consist of a short, sharp paralyzing bombardment, followed by an immediate airborne invasion," General Eaker, soon to be retired after 30 years' service, told the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences yesterday. "Fewer than 300,000 men could descend under silk and take this country," he added. Without mentioning any country, Eaker said such a war will come from a country "with tremendous manpower and industry potential."

"We know it will come across the Arctic, as the shortest air-route, but we don't know when," he declared.

Homeward Bound

Paris, Aug. 8 (AP)—Virginia Hill, pretty California friend of murdered Benjamin (Bugsy) Siegel, was homeward bound by air today—feeling, as she said before her departure, as if she'd "just as soon jump off the airplane." She was talking, she said, about "all these stories they have been writing about me" in the newspapers since Siegel's killing the night of June 20.

Palestine Commission in Y. M. C. A.

The United Nations commission studying the Palestine question in the Y.M.C.A. building in Palestine.

is of special interest to Dr. William C. Cain, pastor of the Roundout Presbyterian and Wurts Street Baptist Church.

Dr. Cain was one of the Y.M.C.A. secretaries in Jerusalem at the time the building was conceived. Sir Arthur Hart was general secretary in Jerusalem at the time the building was built. Herbert Chivers, better known in this country through Chivers English marmalade, and Dr. Cain worked out the original imposing sketch of the building, including the famous prayer tower for all nations. Dr. Cain worked with the Palestine project while there, which built up good feeling between all religions in the Holy Land.

Dr. Cain was greatly interested to learn through the local Y. M. C. A. that what they conceived was now to be used for the U. N. Palestine Commission meetings.

Dedicated in 1933 by Lord Alton, the British general who freed the Middle East from Turkish rule in the First World War, to "the One Lord, God of Christ, Jew and Moslem alike," the structure, generally is regarded as the most beautiful "X" in the world.

It is located on the west side of Julian's Way, facing eastward toward the Holy City, and really is a group of three buildings. In the center is the main building with its "Jesus Tower," the highest point in Jerusalem. The base of the tower contains an oratory for quiet worship, while the upper area is a carillon of 35 bells, the largest weighing one and a half tons. The main building also has meeting rooms, offices, dining rooms, kitchens, game rooms, and a large library.

Other buildings contain the physical education department, trade school, and auditorium where the U. N. meetings will be held. Operating a 55,000 gallon swimming pool and shower baths in a city which for 35 centuries has suffered from a water scarcity requires no small amount of ingenuity. Rain water is collected from the roofs of the "Y" buildings and nearby five acre athletic field and fed into cisterns with a capacity of 2,750,000 gallons.

Waste water from the shower baths is used to irrigate the gardens surrounding the buildings.

Much of the stone of the exterior walls was quarried on the site. It glows with rose, ochre, brown and reddish tints. The architectural style is Byzantine, adopted as typical of many of the early churches in the Near East but modified to suit the requirements of a modern building.

On the facade of the central building are three inscriptions expressing beliefs of the three monotheistic faiths to which Jerusalem is sacred. The Hebrew inscription reads, "The Lord our God is our Lord" (Deut. 6:4). Opposite it is one from the chapter by Mohammed in the Koran, "There is no God but God." In the center, in Aramaic, is the inscription, "I am the way," (John 14:6).

The building was erected largely through the generosity of James Jarvie of Montclair, N. J., who donated $1,000,000 towards its construction. Another $250,000 was given by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and $100,000 by the late S. P. Fenn of Cleveland.

The building is staffed by American, Arab and Jewish workers, with A. L. Miller of Sioux City, Ia., as the general secretary, Lee M. Terrill of Galveston, Tex., assists him. Paul Hartman of Pittsburgh directs the large physical education program.

An experiment in inter-racial and inter-religious cooperation, the Jerusalem Y.M.C.A. numbers among its members representatives of 33 nations and 10 religions. All groups share in such common experiences as living in the same hostels, attending the same classes, playing the same sports or serving on the same committees.

The Y.M.C.A. is virtually the only place in Palestine where Arabs, Jews and Christians can meet on a common ground. All activities are open to everyone.

regardless of religion or race. The evening school, one of the most popular activities, is about evenly divided between Arab and Jewish students. Despite the frequent periods of crisis in Palestine, there has never been a single incident of ill-will between the various groups within the "Y."

As the United Nations commission proceeds with its work, all the world will hope that the prophecy from Isaiah, inscribed on the walls of the "Y" building in which the commission meets, will at last come to fulfillment: "Thine eyes shall see Jerusalem a quiet habitation."

F.D.R., Jr., Asks for Time On Speeding Hearing

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 8—

The city magistrate of the village of Lake Success has postponed for two weeks a hearing on speeding charges against Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr.

Summonses recently were issued for the couple, charging they raced their automobiles at 52 miles an hour near United Nations headquarters in the early morning hours.

Young Roosevelt, who yesterday was appointed an attorney for the upholsterers' International Union of North America (A.F.L.), asked the postponement of the hearing, scheduled for last night, because of the pressure of business.

Men Must Wear Pants

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—

"Wear pants or don't play" is the order today on Albany's tennis courts. With the temperature hovering around 80 degrees, the Department of Public Works ruled yesterday that men can't wear abbreviated bathing trunks on the courts. The department, which issued no rule concerning girls' dress, said it received a complaint that the courts were "being turned into a nudist colony."

EASIER LIFE

"Bankers' hours" as many people call them continue to spread, and what was formerly a six-day working week gets down to five. And what are more lightly occupied men and women going to do with their time? Obviously they will take things easier and have more fun. But the wiser ones will not be satisfied with mere fun. They may want to adopt Solomon's plan. He is the fellow who said to his son: "Get wisdom, and with all thy getting get understanding."

Getting wisdom requires meditation. Running around like a bug is not likely to produce it. It requires observation of the relation of one thing to another and of both to the whole of life. Sometimes such understanding of the universe comes to a man while gardening or quietly making repairs on his house. It may come to a man while mending or making beds.

It is not likely to come to a worried soul while watching the map and the mileage to make sure the car leaves No. 2 where it turns into 879 and not before nor after. It does not come at the card table. But it does sometimes come to a man while fishing or to a woman just sitting on a rock and enjoying the world around her.

"The world is too much with us. Late and soon getting and spending we lay waste our powers." Why don't we get something out of our leisure of more than passing value? "The world is so full of a number of things"—and some of them are eternal verities.

Danes are helping to occupy beaten Germany. This should soothe the feelings of the little power that in 1864 was the first victim of the rising Germany, and from 1940 to 1945 suffered the brutalities of Nazi rule.

MODERN MINING

What can be done with a coal mine starting from scratch has been shown by the owners of the Robena mine in Pennsylvania. With no antiquated equipment or housing set-up, almost ideal conditions have been attained by the H. C. Frick Coke Company, which started operations in this mine in 1937. No company town, with its attendant evils, houses the miners, who drive to work from as far as 20 miles away. Upon arrival they do not wield picks and shovels, but push buttons which control automatic drilling, cutting, dumping, and loading machinery. The men stand upright in tunnels supported by steel beams, and breathe fresh, cool air furnished by a blower system. In this, the world's largest coal mine, they take out about 2,000 more tons a day than in any other coal mine in the world.

This shows what can be done toward solving one of the world's most pressing problems—the production of coal—when the huge resources of a large corporation can be called on to back the enterprise. Coal mining in Great Britain, in the Ruhr Valley, and even in some sections of the United States, must be done under entirely different conditions. In a mechanized age, coal mining cannot keep up with demand while using antiquated manual methods. Some way must be found to modernize more mines.

It seems usually to be a toss-up whether a man in public life gets more kicks or more thanks. Their general feeling is that the kicks have it.

VACATIONS IN ITALY

Anzio, to Italians, no longer means a battle-ground, but a vacation spot.

After the grim war years with their influx of Allied troops to be catered to, the Italians are free now to live their own lives. And one of the most wholesome aspects of the return to normal living is the happy habit of vacationing. For those Romans who cannot get away for even a week, a 75-cent bus trip to Ostia or Fregene provides a long day on a sunny beach. A fine Sunday draws as many as 150,000 bathers to Ostia. White-collar workers spend a week at Anzio and return refreshed to their jobs.

The scars of war are healed by relaxation, sunshine, and laughter, and the Italian people are fortunate to be so situated as to have these advantages. Elsewhere in Europe hunger, food lines and housing are not to be

BREWSTER-HUGHES CONTROVERSY

It really makes no difference whether Senator Brewster got a free ride in Howard Hughes' airplane or whether in private conversation Brewster said this or that to Hughes. The issue is not personal. It is not between Brewster and Hughes. It is not over which one is a liar. If Senator Brewster has betrayed his oath of office, he should be investigated by the Senate, as the law provides and as the Senate has proposed, offering to waive all immunities. But Mr. Hughes must file his charges under oath, not as press-agented stories in newspapers.

Howard Hughes pulled a clever and ingenious publicity stunt when, under attack himself, he hit out at Senator Brewster. It had all the earmarks of the professional who had Anna Held bathe in an advertised tub of milk. It was skillful public relations, but it was not germane to the subject. It was a total and complete shifting from what is the public interest and concern to a highlighted private feud.

The issue is simple: some war contracts were not sound. Which were they? Why were they let? Who insisted upon them? Were they in the public interest, perhaps as an experimental project? If such contracts were not in the public interest, was there corruption and fraud—and by whom? That is the issue.

Only one accusation has been made against Senator Brewster which is important; namely, that he offered to squelch the investigation. That accusation at the moment of writing has not been made under oath, either on the witness stand or in the form of an affidavit. It is either true or untrue and that should be discovered.

The Hughes-Kaiser set-up was first investigated by the Truman committee. It was allowed to die when Senator Mead of New York succeeded Senator Truman to the chairmanship of the committee in charge. When the Republicans took over the organization of the Senate, Senator Owen Brewster of Maine succeeded Senator Mead. The Hughes-Kaiser investigation, however, was not initiated by Senator Brewster. It was initiated by Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan, the most talented investigator in the Senate today. Senators Ferguson was then appointed chairman of a subcommittee to go into this contract, which he has done.

The interest of the American people can only be served by the facts. It may be true that Howard Hughes is a charming and delightful gentleman, an ingenious inventor and a patriotic capitalist. All this has nothing to do with the matter in hand. This is an investigation into war contracts. It is similar to the investigation of the Garsons. There will be many more. In fact, the entire conduct of the war ought to be investigated. It has been a costly war. How much of the cost was essential to the national defense? How much was due to negligence and waste? A people who cannot get an income tax cut from their government have a right to know that their money is not being wasted.

We call Howard Hughes, Mr. X; let us call Henry Kaiser, Mr. Y. And let us from that point on proceed with the facts without the red-herring of personalities and personal abuse. Rich men and rich firms can hire relations counsel to abuse the public confidence, and in my opinion, Senator Ferguson ought to make public the names of such counsel as the names of the general counsel.

There will be many more. In fact, the entire conduct of the war ought to be investigated. It has been a costly war. How much of the cost was essential to the national defense? How much was due to negligence and waste? A people who cannot get an income tax cut from their government have a right to know that their money is not being wasted.

At any rate, the people are entitled to the facts, no matter who is involved. Many things were done during the war years which were wrong. Many of the wrongs were committed with the best of intentions, but the hope of shortening the war and saving lives. Many wrongs were committed by criminals abusing the public confidence.

No man should be pilloried until the facts are on the record under oath. He who seeks to avoid testimony under oath acknowledges his lack of confidence in his own conduct. But the facts must come out—and no one should be protected in the search for facts.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

CHRONIC CONSTIPATION

A patient consulted his physician about constant constipation for many years. As he was an office man, the physician prescribed some mineral oil, advised him to walk to and from his work and to take some bending exercises night and morning to stimulate liver, gall bladder and large intestine. As the constipation continued, the physician prescribed more mineral oil, mild laxatives like senna and magnesia, and some rough foods, with little or no results.

Finally, an X-ray meal was given and the film showed that the large bowel (colon) was greatly enlarged. This condition is called megacolon. The patient was then put on "soft" foods, vitamins, and drugs to tighten or tone up the large intestine. As this treatment failed to give results, a surgical operation, cutting off the nerve supplying the large intestine, was performed.

In "surgery," Drs. W. J. Merle Scott and Quintino J. Serenati, University of Rochester, N. Y., state that this operation should be performed only after several months of treatment and one or more spinal anesthetic injections of the anesthetic into the spinal canal have been given to relax the nerve supplying the large intestine. This cutting of the nerve is done particularly in nervous, tensed patients.

Sometimes the colon enlarges because of some obstruction present when the patient was born or has acquired later. In these cases, an extra loop of colon is present and if not active is removed by surgery. I have written before of a case with this extra loop which had been given to relax the nerve, causing no symptoms during his student activities and mining prospecting, but which caused distress and constipation when he was promoted to an office position.

As enlarged colon occurs sometimes in children where constipation has existed from birth and very long colons are kinked close to lower end of bowel, ordinary treatment—enemas, laxatives, and diet—are not usually successful. In this extra length of colon, has not the usual markings showing active muscle tissue to push wastes down and out of bowel, removal of this extra part of colon and also cutting of the nerve should be done.

Constipation

It has been estimated that there are more persons with constipation than there are without it. For information on this subject, send today for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "Constipation." Government costs too much, complains a critic, but says at the same time that ours is the best in the world. That's some consolation.

It's surprising nowadays to find how many people have never read Mark Twain. If they only knew what was coming to them!

BABSON on BUSINESS

BABSON DISCUSES THE CUSTOMERS' RIGHTS
Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 8—For months we have been hearing of nothing but management's rights and labor's rights. The rights of another group have often been forgotten in quarrels between management and labor—those of the general public.

It is about time that all groups begin to think in terms of national well-being. Today, we are faced with a great debt from prewar war, and post-war spending. We are carrying a heavy tax-burden. We are trying to help most of the war-torn countries of the world back onto their feet. This cannot be done without the kind of shoulder-to-shoulder effort and capacity for work for which Americans used to be famous and of which America used to be proud.

Since the late twenties we have seen our economic structure gradually weakened. Business opportunities have been restricted, incentive to "make a million" (an American slogan of my youth) or even a tiny portion thereof has been destroyed. We are warned by many responsible thinkers that it would not be too long before we would slide into Britain's kind of poor financial position. This is not pessimism. We must face the economic as well as the political truth of our day if we are to remain a free people in every sense of the word. Is the European or even British free—whose standard of living is dropping so low that a pair of stockings or a can of corn is unexpected luxury?

An advocate of industrial harmony in this country, Charles Luckman, points out that lowered standards of living in today's Europe are clearly related to lowered production on the part of individual workers. The volume and quality of production is an excellent barometer of a nation's strength. The standard of living is not rising in this country if we are to judge by the kind of product and service the public is getting today. Do we want our nation to fall on the merits of our present restricted or declining industrial performance?

During the war housewives became patient and fatalistic about oven parts that buckled under heat and vitreous china sinks which cracked so easily. They believed it would be different when good materials were not all going to war, when things got back to normal. The American housewife, who incidentally does over 75 per cent of the last brings some living in the U. S. is now asking, "Will things ever get back to normal?"

We still have to ask, "Will you please clean the windshield?" The delivery boy still loves to leave the packages at the front door instead of the back. Often he will leave them three flights downstairs in the apartment house. The third call to a reputable laundry at last brings some action on shirts misplaced by laundry three months before. A electrician starts a small job; then says he is so busy he must leave it for a week. It takes him six weeks to get back. No other electrician, of course, will take on a competitor's job in the meantime.

Buttons come off dresses and shirts the first time they are worn. Seams split in two or three places almost immediately. Many belts won't wash or dry clean. How many new cars run as well as ten year old ones? The war has been over several years, but hotel bathrooms are not shining yet. Management and labor are both to blame when between them they cannot manage to put out more products or services that are of high quality. Let us go back to giving the customer his rights.

Mediocre effort put forth enough times each day by enough people can turn us into a mediocre nation. It is self-delusion for any man to think that he will earn a better living by supporting any politician or labor leader. Only good quality products and services can protect jobs and the future. The hope of every reader of this column lies not in getting higher wages for his week's work, but rather in getting more food, clothing and shelter therefor. The answer lies within each of us. Each one of us is a worker, no matter how designated, who should work by high personal standards. We all must make better goods and more of them each week. Only then are there more to divide amongst us all so that we all will get more in food, clothing and shelter for our week's work.

C. R. DOUGLAS

Now comes a dance which seems to belong to the atomic age. It's the rumbogie and the word itself in sound seems to suggest the accumulated reverberations and echoes of atomic explosion. It's no minuet, we hear, and from a recent description by Lucille Stoddard, director of the 17th annual dance congress, we understand that it will have an effect similar to that one would get if he mounted a live eel on a half dozen high-hopping frogs.

The dance, said Miss Stoddard, is a combination of some finer points in that riotous frenzy known as the rumba style. It all happens, as we get it, in something approximating simultaneous action, and one isn't allowed to do one tag in a bit of jitterbugging while he gives a miniature imitation of the Frisco earthquake.

Years ago, we hear, men handled women like wax dolls on a dance floor. They were afraid that the slightest indication of rough handling would mark them as unsavory. In the jitterbugging of jitterbugging in recent years, have often been reminded of the night Firpo knocked Dempsey out of the ring, or one of those modern torso-tossing, house-pleasing wrestling contests.

It appears to have been the age of the "wax doll" women who taught men to tip their hats and be otherwise considerate of and gentle to women. Now it's a very Guy and gal for him-and-herself, and in the jitterbugging exhibitions, the girl plays a role similar to the heavy part in a trapeze act.

Once we used to differentiate between types of dances with the general classifications of "round" and "square." Now, it seems, the whole idea is taking on new dimensions, and some modern ballrooms resemble a lot filled with helicopters in various stages of take-off.

The square dance can be and is a workout when done in full whirl and country style, but is largely a contest of hands and legs and occasional vigorous exercising of the vocal chords in screams and laughter.

A combination of the rumba and jitterbug, it would seem, is bound to be something like tossing quivering jelly in an electric fan, and in the parlance of the bobby soxers, it certainly must be "out of this world."

May we have the next mazurka?

Appropriations for Study of Conditions Abroad Are Well Spent; Congress Will Get Practical Reports
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Aug. 8—Probably the best money appropriated by the legislative branch of the government for its own activities is that recently allocated to investigations abroad.

Indications are that foreign policy will be much discussed when Congress reconvenes. The fact that a substantial number of members of the House and Senate will be visiting foreign countries this autumn will be the biggest kind of help toward a better understanding of the issues involved.

For years there has been criticism that the American Congress legislated on foreign questions from an insular viewpoint. For instance, the late Senator Borah of Idaho, outstanding isolationist, was invited to go abroad and declined amid widespread comment that he did not want to learn by contact.

The principal committees investigating conditions in foreign countries are those appointed by the House of Representatives. It is in the House that the major opposition to such things as the Marshall plan or change in the statutes covering the British loan agreement will arise.

Members of the House have already performed considerable service by their studies abroad. It has been helpful to find committees and subcommittees studying the financial and economic trends of European countries.

It is most unfortunate that the Russian government has turned down the requests of three House members to visit Russia. A similar request by three senators is pending in the Senate. The coordination of the legislative branch of the government in the ratification of treaties and international agreements, it would be a serious mistake if the Russian government denied these envoys an opportunity to study conditions first hand.

The need for a closer relationship with Russia is every day becoming more and more imperative. If the Russian government is unwilling even to allow informal discussion and visits to improve relations, the whole world will wonder. Certainly the burden will rest on the Russian government.

Nearly every American visitor of importance to Russia has brought back information or impressions of constructive value. It would seem that an opportunity for the Russian officials to talk frankly and informally with American senators this autumn would be a useful step toward better relations with the United States Congress.

There will, of course, be many members of Congress visiting Great Britain, and France, and some will travel to the Far East. The British economic situation is acute already. Many observers here feel that the loan agreements cannot be materially altered without action by Congress. The British have not hesitated to welcome American members of Congress and to let them see for themselves the destruction which has swept England and the heroic efforts that are being made to rebuild a country which for so many months in 1940 and 1941 stood out against the Nazis alone amid a bombardment of civilians of such intensity as had been unknown before.

Great Britain has been in the throes of economic readjustment with wartime controls retained. Drastic powers limiting the freedom of individuals, with rationing of all supplies have been applied in a desperate effort to attain a balanced economy. The American-British loan was approved at a time when the price level in the United States was much lower than it is today. As prices have risen, the cost to the British of importing necessary commodities has risen perceptibly. Thus, the loan does not go as far toward alleviating Britain's exchange problem as was first contemplated.

Neither the U. S. nor Britain is at fault as a consequence. If any groups are to blame, it is the American bloc of economic power which have conducted a battle on prices and wages in an inflationary duel that has caused suffering everywhere.

Substantial alterations in the British loan agreement have long been foreseen as necessary as an alternative to an enlargement of the loan itself, something that an economy-minded Congress probably wouldn't like as much as an amendment of the terms. These are not a vacation trip through the pages of the time when dollars and pounds become convertible throughout the sterling bloc of nations and also would permit adjustments in trade between Britain and her dominions.

Some segments of American trade adversely, but, as between a collapse in Britain and alterations in the original plan, the latter is much to be preferred. (Reproduction rights reserved)

Robert Moses, city construction coordinator, disclosed last night. Most Hungarians Against Country's Communist Regime

Paris, Aug. 8 (AP)—Stephen Thuransky, 54-year-old U. S. citizen, who arrived here yesterday following his escape from political police in Budapest, asserts that 90 per cent of Hungarians are against the country's Communist regime.

"Am I glad to get out of that hell hole," said Thuransky, who with the aid of his wife escaped from his jailers while awaiting trial on charges of disparaging the Communist regime. He fled to the immunity of the U. S. Embassy in an American legation automobile.

"We spent a year in Hungary," said Thuransky, a farm machinery salesman from Columbus, Ohio. "I was supposed to sell farm machinery, but I never sold a single piece. Hungarians would come to me all the time and tell me what they thought about the Communists."

"I fought the Communists in Hungary in 1919 before I went to the United States, and I never kept my opinions to myself."

Thuransky and his family have reservations on the American Freighter Marine Jumper, leaving for Havre August 10, for the United States. With him are his wife, Theresa, 43, and their two daughters, Margaret, 25, and Mary, 21.

"I won't feel good until I get on that ship," Thuransky said.

Kurdt Says Now Is Time to Get Beetle

Damage to area crops by the Japanese Beetle, which, according to reports has been infesting several sections of the county, has been offset by effective spraying of D.D.T. Albert Kurdt, manager of the Ulster County Farm Bureau, said today.

The beetle has caused scattered damage to small home grape crops and other plants and vegetation. It was learned, but no serious damage to crops of commercial growers has been reported. The insects are expected to enter another egg-laying period soon, and Mr. Kurdt stressed the point that effective spraying at this time will prevent spread of the menace next year.

The only other nomination was that of Harry Avery for justice of the peace for a full four-year term. There was no designation of councilman or school director.

The chairman did not designate a committee of three to fill vacancies.

Herman Short was chairman, Mrs. Richard Bronson was secretary, while tellers were Gertrude Russell and Ethel Fisher.

The American, Lt. Robert Nelson, Minneapolis, Kans., and S/Sgt. Algy Stanley Augunas, Bay Shore, N. Y., were executed by sword and rifle after their B-29 was shot down in a raid on Kobe.

Close Ups

To Discredit 80th Congress

An editorial writer was disappointed with the job turned in by the 80th Congress, and because this fellow's heart seems to be right and because he is typical of a large minority of American voters, I beg leave to show where his head is wrong.

After taking Congress over the coals for being "reactionary," the editorial writer said, "The real fault—is with the system." He proposed that the two major political parties work together in close support of the President's program on domestic issues, just as they have sometimes worked together in a bi-partisan foreign policy.

This man says he is anti-Communist, and at times lambasts Communism and the U.S.S.R. with such hymnmakers that we must concede him at least the intent. He undoubtedly believes he is opposing Communism.

Yet often he has stood with the C.I.O.-New Deal-Communist opposition to legislation favored by conservative Democrats and Republicans alike. Currently he is contributing to the chorus, led by the "Communist" papers, of de-framing the "reactionary" Congress.

True the Communists openly demand a one-party totalitarian government. In that they are more consistent than our editorial writer friend who does not appear to see that he is working toward the same end. To him—as to the Communist Party and friends—Congress is democratic only if and when it gives him what HE wants.

Not only the Soviet Union, but the United States also is the prisoner of its own system of government, according to him.

If this makes sense it is too deep for me. Apparently, what he wants is to have his cake and eat it too. Such befuddlement is our heritage from a dictatorship within the framework of the Constitution.

The campaign by the left wing to discredit the outgoing Congress before the elections next year, is shaping up. Senator Robert Taft, in his talk at Columbus, O., last week, pointed to the come-back of the Party in Congress as one of its great accomplishments in view of the 15-year smear campaign which has been conducted apparently with the aim of killing the party.

To Film F.D.R. Story

Credit for preserving the two-party system must go largely to American newspapers, for the powerful film industry and certain radio networks have been vastly influenced to support New Deal ideology. If the administration or its friends had been able to gain an equal degree of influence over the daily press we would have had an opposition party in name only, if at all.

Here is one example of the kind of Hollywood support we may expect for the New Deal in 1948: A movie glorifying the life and times of Franklin D. Roosevelt. This is going to be a big spectacle, backed by plenty of money and ballyhooed to the sky by the most expert ballyhoosers in history.

It is a powerful vehicle for reviving—in the middle of a New Deal campaign for re-election—the "great idealism" which the earlier New Deal was able to sell many a voter.

Like many recent Hollywood propaganda releases, it will appeal to class and cater to racial minorities. Anti-Semitism is going to be one of its themes. Doubtless used to smear Anti-New Dealers as it frequently has been used in the past against both Republicans and "Southern Democrats."

The producer has announced that he will have the cooperation of such old time New Dealers as Henry Morgenthau, Jr., former Secretary of the Treasury, Joe Lash, one-time Communist youth leader and protégé of Mrs. Roosevelt, Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas and her husband, Actor Melvyn Douglas.

It will be interesting to observe the effect of this film, which supposedly will be showing before summer, 1948, because, instead of accomplishing the desired results it could prove a boomerang, stirring resentment in several directions.

Wallender Picks Young Officers for Detectives

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Two hundred young patrolmen, without previous experience as plain clothesmen, will be taught how to spot gamblers and other phases of detective work at a special training school opening Monday.

Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallender announced late yesterday that the young patrolmen, most of them war veterans, would go through the five weeks course in groups of 85.

The graduates will form a pool from which plain clothes staffs will be filled when vacancies occur. Previously, police inspectors designated the men they wished to use as plain clothes patrolmen.

Earlier this week Wallender transferred all but one of the city's district inspectors. The move came at the opening of a concerted drive against gambling. Sixty-nine arrests were made yesterday, fourth day of the drive.

Grand juries in the Bronx and Queens are investigating accusations made by self-styled former bookmakers that they paid protection to policemen.

Wallender yesterday directed his inspectors to check any cases where plain clothes patrolmen appear to be living "beyond their means."

Girl Veteran of Tito's Wars Tells of Her Fighting Career

By DANIEL D. LUCE

Belgrade (AP)—The little, dark-haired woman at a government desk in Belgrade today was fighting in the woods with a rifle four years ago.

She is daintily manicured and coiffured. Her dress is chic. Yet she has not forgotten when she slept in the mud during a tragic retreat, ate green clover when food ran out, and swore vengeance against an enemy that would have hanged her.

She wears none of her medals for valor. But there is an American army watch on her slender wrist. It belonged to an airman whose life she helped to save when he pulled out of a crippled bomber in the mountains behind the German lines.

Munira Karahasanovic, 32-year-old Partisan veteran, has made the conversion from war to peace. Like thousands of other women from the ranks of Tito's army, Munira has found an official position in Yugoslavia's "new democracy." She is a secretary in an information office, dealing mainly with foreigners, and exists modestly on a salary of about 4,000 dinars ($80) a month.

Only Wishes to Serve

When asked what is her ambition now, she responds gravely: "I only wish to serve the people's republic as best I can."

She, along with many other government employees, declines to say whether she is a member of the Communist party, although foreigners often inquire.

But she indicates that the socio-political revolution in Yugoslavia has caught up with her own ideas. For she had always been a rebel.

At the age of 16, despite the strong religious traditions of her family, she told her Muslim parents in Sarajevo that she would never wear a black veil.

When she came to Belgrade, just before the war, to attend the university, she plunged into the student radicalism that enlivened campus activities. She demonstrated, risking arrest, for trade unions and women's rights.

She became the bride of a young Muslim whose views abled with her own and in 1942 both went off to the woods to fight the Axis. For the duration of the war they rarely saw each other. They were assigned to different commands, according to Partisan custom. But he has a job close by today in the ministry of foreign affairs.

In 1943, the Germans pursued Munira's brigade of 300 fighters, 10 per cent of them women, from Herzegovina, through the fastnesses of Montenegro, until haven was found on the high slopes of Mount Romanija.

Limping Skeleton

Munira was a limping skeleton when the retreat was over. She had lost 30 of her 100 pounds. She remembers that she nearly wept when a peasant woman let her touch a freshly washed blouse. She had not taken off her mud-soaked uniform for 45 days and nights.

That occurred during the German's fifth offensive. For Partisans, it was a crisis of survival, like Valley Forge.

Afterwards because she was too frail for combat yet too fiery in temperament to be ignored, Munira became a recruiting officer in the Muslim villages of Bosnia. Hers was one of the voices that raised an entire Muslim division for Tito. She worked in the rear of enemy forces.

In 1944, two fliers plummeted into her territory. One was a tall American named Peterson, the other a stubby Briton, McDonald. Neither could find out what happened to eight other crewmen in their bomber, on route back to Italy from Budapest, after they hit the silk.

The tiny, ex-Partisan, who rarely smiles, refers to Tito with solemn, almost religious fervor. But when she talks of "Mac and Pet," she suddenly becomes gay.

"They stayed with us for a month, until we could send them on safely to a pick-up airdrome at Sanski Most for their return to Bari."

"After Mac and Pet left, there was a time that we took care of 10 airmen at once, who were also very nice. But I liked Mac and Pet best of all."

"Pet gave me his watch, and said I could find him after the war from the marking on the back. See! Here it is."

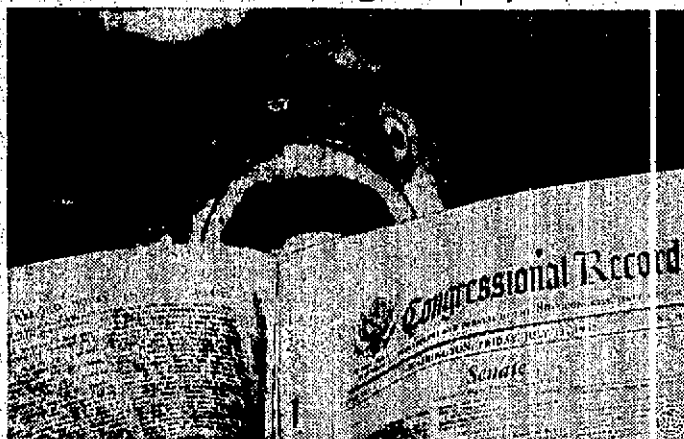

The timepiece has the ordinance number W-11-107AC-267 (72).

"But I have not been to the United States and I don't know when, if ever, I may go. I was in London last year and I looked for Mac. When I asked people if they knew where I could find an Englishman named McDonald, who was a flier, they just smiled and said, 'Oh, there are thousands and thousands of McDonalds.'"

Hauling Tonnage

During the war years commercial motor vehicles hauled approximately 640,000,000 tons of goods.

Something's Fishy

Some remark in the staid Congressional Record has this fellow open-mouthed and wide-eyed in amazement. The fish, a 14-pound rock, was caught in the Chester River by a party of Capitol and Washington, D. C., policemen.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—For years Frank K. Kelly, a successful free lance, cursed the idiosyncrasies of editors.

Now he is an editor himself, and finds it a bit disturbing to be issuing rejection slips to other writers.

As a matter of fact, he avoids printed rejection slips whenever possible, remembering the bitterness of all writers toward turn-downs of this kind.

"I have had so many myself," he said pleasantly, "they got to seem like old buddies."

Now 33, Kelly began writing at the age of twelve. At sixteen he had overridden his first wave of rejections to become a regular contributor to science fiction magazines. Since then, between tours of duty as a newspaperman, a Nieman fellow at Harvard University and a wartime sergeant overseas, he has sold some sixty stories and articles to magazines as diverse as "Amazing Stories" and "The Atlantic Monthly." One tale was selected by the late Edward O'Brien for inclusion in his annual anthology of best short stories.

Recently Kelly became manuscript editor himself for a well known weekly magazine and learned the other side of the picture. He conscientiously reads at least 15 to twenty manuscripts a day and has become something of a problem to the stenographers in his office.

"They say I write too many personal letters to writers," he said. "One girl brought me out a whole stack of printed rejection forms starting 'The editors wish to thank you for submitting your manuscript, but . . .'

Hates to Do It

"Well, I use them once in a while, but I hate to do it. That hurts a writer most of all—to get a printed rejection slip attached to a paper clip to his labor of love."

So Kelly in most cases tries to give a personal assessment of each manuscript he finds it necessary to return—which is at least 99 out of every 100 submitted.

"The result is the writers bombard me with their other manuscripts by return airmail, special delivery," he laughed. "But that's all right. I did that myself."

Kelly said that as a contributor himself he always thought it was a legend that editors were in constant search of new talent, but he has found it to be true. The "name" writers get turned down often just as do the "unknowns."

He said that all manuscripts get a thorough reading unless the editor can tell at a glance that they are hopelessly unadapted to their needs.

"I had the suspicion deep in the heart of every writer that editors don't read his stuff with the loving care he expects," he smiled. "Well, it just isn't so. Editors really are quite desperately hunting for new talent, and nothing gives them a greater thrill than finding it."

Defeat Themselves

Most writers, Kelly said, defeat themselves.

"The mistakes they make most often is in not taking sufficient care to see that the impact of their material is as sharp as possible—so that it will compel an editor to keep on reading. He naturally feels that if he doesn't want to read further the people who buy the magazine won't either."

I asked Kelly whether his experience as an editor had helped him as a writer.

"Yes," he said, "I learned that editors have to look coldly on leisurely discursive writing, and welcome, most of all, a fast sparkling style. The editor, like the reader, is a busy impatient man. He wants to be pulled at once into the main body of the narrative without any preliminaries or philosophic observations."

But Kelly said it was foolish for any competent writer to be discouraged by rejection slips. One of his own stories, "turned down by practically every magazine in America," promptly brought $200 when submitted to a Canadian editor.

"One writer to whom I wrote a personal letter of rejection told me it gave him courage to go on," he said. "But I believe writing is an incurable itch. No editor can destroy a real writer's passion for putting black marks on white paper. And the market is always wide open for fresh stuff."

Richmond Parkway Neighbors Gather for Picnic At Craw Home; Plan More Community Events

Forty residents of Richmond Parkway gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin E. Craw for a community picnic Wednesday night. For quite some time the residents have spoken of meeting for a social evening and the idea became reality under the arrangements made by the Misses Arlene Craw, Gertrude Kenney and Kathleen Donovan.

Each of the families on the Parkway were notified and assigned some item for the picnic. A program of community singing, impromptu quartets, solos, children's entertainment and games was held.

The community spirit among the Parkway people is not entirely new since from time to time the children have presented neighborhood circuses and May Day festivals.

The party Wednesday was so successful that the neighbors are planning other events. A community Christmas tree carol sing will take place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Miller.

Among the families represented at the picnic were those of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wiggins, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hummer, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hummer, Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Raszkoskie, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Kenney, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Emmet, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cliney, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Langley, Mr. and Mrs. W. COLLEGE SEAL

This following seemingly simple question is actually very important: "Is it proper to use the stationery with: (a) The college seal on it after graduation? (b) How about the sorority seal?"

The reason for this question's importance is that a surprising number of graduates abuse the privilege, therefore, (a) unless continuing in residence at the college, one should not use the college seal. (b) If you are staying at, or stop in at, your sorority house and write a letter, you naturally use the house stationery. You would also use it should you write on matters concerned with the sorority. It is, of course, improper to take a supply of writing paper home with you for your private use unless you have bought it—which you could do, if you use the sorority house as your address.

Gentleman Goes to Door

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a widow in my forties, living in a suburb. On the few occasions I go out with men friends, I have been taken home right to my front door. But there is one friend I have who drives a car and when he brings me home he lets me get out of the car by myself and then he drives on. It seems rather shabby treatment, and yet in almost everything else he is kind and considerate. Is there anyway I could let him know what I think of his behavior?

Answer: If the street is normally quiet, you are quite right. He should get out of the car and help you out. Not only that, but he should walk up the steps with you and ring the bell—or open your door. Taking it for granted his bad manners undoubtedly are due to the fact that he has never been taught this particular courtesy required of him, it seems to me there is nothing you can do that would not hurt his feelings and in this way spoil the friendship you now enjoy.

Poor Father

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it true that the groom's father has to walk up the aisle in church alone, tagging on behind his wife and the usher who escorts her?

Answer: If he feels that walking alone is "tagging" he can walk on the other side of his wife or he can escort someone else.

Spoons

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary to provide a spoon for (1) salted nuts, (2) olives, (3) little pickles, (4) potato chips?

Answer: 1, 2, and 4, no; 3, yes.

Whether you are serving a buffet dinner, or a formal dinner, you will find Mrs. Post's booklet No. 503, "The Etiquette of Service," very helpful. To obtain a copy send 10 cents (coin preferred) and a 3-cent stamp to her, c/o Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Capelets Double A Formal's Duty

Mrs. Hayworth Likes capelet.
BY ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Make your formal summer gown go double-duty as a dinner dress by covering its bare top with a new, old-fashioned type capelet.

This feminine accessory, which practical Parisiennes make such good use of, is as well liked by Hollywood. Movie gals use it to get more wear out of those formal gowns which in the summertime are apt to languish in a closet.

Rita ("Down to Earth") Hayworth, for one, has covered-up capelets that take in many of the filmy fabrics from black nylon net to sheerest white organdy. One back-fastened capelet of white organdy, for instance, tops Rita's most de luxe summer formal—a strapless sequin-dotted gown of white faille. The addition of this capelet to her gown has more than doubled its usefulness, says the actress. You can wear up your own capelets, if you have bare-topped gowns to cover. A capelet, incidentally, makes pretty neckwear for dark daytime dresses, too. If you are handy with the needle, materials for this accessory may be forthcoming from your scrap-bag. If not, umbrage over the remnant counter for likely fabrics.

Perini Girl's Body

Body was discarded. She was wearing a tiny bathing cap. A mouthful of hair held to the belief that the child drowned from the moment she was reported missing at 6 p. m. yesterday. Her father, however, had expressed the belief that she might have wandered into dense woods in the rear of the estate. A big group of police, guardsmen and volunteers were preparing to search woods when the body was recovered.

Prosecutor Says

ceasingly heavy drinker. When he drank, like many men, he underwent a change in character. Later he has been drinking more and more. Drinking caused him to become irrational, abusive and violent.

"Monday when I was in court in Mt. Ida my wife, Anne, had to call the sheriff's office after he got to her. I at once took my father in hand and as soon as he was able we discussed the situation. He agreed with me that he needed medical treatment. Arrangements for proper care and hospitalization for him were to be completed this week.

"Started Drinking Again

"Yesterday he started drinking again after I had left town, he returned to our home in my absence. He started mistreating one of our horses. Anne pleaded with him to stop. He became enraged and violent and threatened to kill the horse. He also threatened her.

She ran into the house to get away from him. He followed her, threatening and cursing and with his fist clinched, she picked up my 45 automatic, which I keep in my desk with the idea of frightening him away.

"He started into the house after her. Anne knew he was not himself. She became hysterical with fright and began firing. Anne has never fired a weapon before in her life. I know she did not intend to kill my father, because she loved him as well as we all did. She would not have intentionally killed even to save her own life.

"The sheriff's office, the Hot Springs police department, my deputies, and I have made a complete investigation.

"These are the facts. I am requesting a Circuit judge to call a special meeting of the grand jury to investigate the case. I am also going to request the court to appoint a special prosecuting attorney to present this case to the grand jury.

"It is not necessary to express my sorrow at this worst tragedy in our lives."

No Powder Burns

Coroner Foster Jarrell said there were no powder burns around any part of the three wounds suffered by the elder McGrath. He said the bullet struck McGrath from the front and ranged downward. Jarrell said he did not plan to pursue the investigation "with the information I now have at hand."

Acting Sheriff George Callahan said that approximately 30 minutes before the prosecutor's wife reported the shooting that she had called the sheriff's office asking if there had been any report made about the prosecutor's favorite horse and his father who were absent from the McGrath home on Cedar Mountain, three miles west of downtown Hot Springs.

McGrath was attending a community picnic at Lake Village when called about the tragedy. He was met at Pine Bluff and flown here, arriving about 11:45 p. m.

McGrath said his wife, who had been administered sedatives shortly after the shooting, still was "in pretty bad shape." He said she was highly nervous and that both his wife and mother were under physician's care at his home.

Mrs. McGrath is the former Anne Phillips of Slate Springs, Miss. She is McGrath's second wife. His first wife died while he was in the Marine Corps and later after his return from the Pacific, he met Miss Phillips in Washington where he was stationed and she was employed.

Mr. and Mrs. McGrath have an 18-month-old son. He also had a five-year-old son by his first wife. The baby and a Negro maid were in the house when the shooting occurred.

U.N. Says Food

collaboration on a long-range program of food production. It said a return to pre-war levels will not be sufficient because of the increase in world population.

As for the year immediately ahead, the F.A.O. said the problem is "not merely a matter of certain number of boatloads of grain, although every boatload counts. It is a matter of saving human lives."

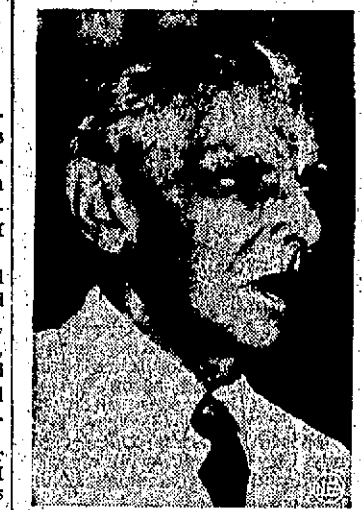

It also is an issue in Europe, the agency added, of whether the next 12 months witness a drift toward "political disintegration or a practical start along the hard road to recovery."

"If the deficit countries fail to get a minimum supply of food, then the repercussions must be faced. Coal production may decline further, a large part of industry may be idle during the coming winter, and social unrest may spread through the cities."

"If, on the other hand, the nations severally and together can take the necessary drastic action to get food to where it is needed, then a foundation is laid on which the health and strength of the working people can be rebuilt and industrial recovery can go forward with assurance."

Dodgers Sweep Doubleheader From Mahanoy City, 6-0 and 14-7

Hintz Hurls Two Hitter in First; Newhard Homers

Fresco Thompson, one of the Brooklyn Dodger minor league bigwigs, sat in the stands at municipal stadium last night and watched the Kingston Dodgers sweep a doubleheader from Buck Etchison's Mahanoy City Bluebirds 6 to 0 and 14 to 7.

The double win bided the Dodger lead over Carbondale to 6 lengths. The Bluebirds relinquished fourth place by a single game to Nazareth.

What Goes Here
The first game violated all previous standards and formats which called for a third rate performance every time the Dodgers played before one of the Brooklyn bigshots. Harry Hintz took personal command for a gaudy two-hit shutout. After two shaky innings, Hintz settled down and permitted only one hit and fanned eight. Both safeties—Singles by Bennett and the rival pitcher, Bennett, were of the "banjo" variety over second base. Mr. Thompson applauded Hintz' pitching vigorously.

Came the second game and Fresco probably felt he should have stood in bed. Those Bluebirds were blue indeed and the three hour truce on the national pastime was concluded with several of the cash customers (important people) snoozing comfortably on the grandstand benches. It was a warm, cozy night and they didn't miss a trick.

Rogan Falls to Last
The Dodgers handed Johnny Rogan ten runs on a platter but the good looking righty just didn't have it. His control was off and Manager George Pratt gave him the hook in the third. Lanky Ted Seddon came in for what appeared to be a cakewalk. It seemed that Big Ted, too, had only a vague idea of where the plate was located and he had to pitch a mighty long game to get out of the victory. He gave Manager Pratt and the cash customers many anxious moments but all's well that ends well and it ended very much in Ted's favor.

The Bluebirds were a sad spectacle in the nightcap. On a couple of occasions the second baseman and shortstop overlooked the fundamental formality of covering second base while Kingston runners were proceeding unmolested from first to second. Twice the ball sailed into center field. It was depressing to say the least, so depressing for Ted Seddon that he removed himself from the slaughter in the second game.

Newhard Raps Homer
Among the items that pleased Fresco Thompson aside from Hintz' nifty pitching, were Bobby Newhard's fourth homer of the season, a line drive to left center; Walt Kowalski's continued batting, four hits and four RBIs in seven trips; four safeties by Chris Kitson and three bingles by Rudy Antonetz in the nightcap.

Both sides received 12 bases on balls and had enough men stranded to start a revolution. Fifteen Mahanoy City base runners lashed in the horrendous nightcap while 18 Kingston runners waited fruitfully for something to happen. The Dodger hit output of 17 was one of the best of the season. Murphy hit a homer to deep right field for the visitors in the ninth inning of the second game.

within 10-5 of the Dodgers in the sixth inning of the afterpiece but the locals met the challenge with five consecutive hits into the left field and left center sector. It was a pretty sight to watch even for the bored customers, as Newhard, Kitson and Kowalski singled, Williams doubled along the foul line and Rosa singled to right center. Three runs in a hurry, just like that.

Manager Pratt will bid goodbye to the Bluebirds with crocodile tears tonight. The Pennsylvania nine has dropped seven out of eight here this season. Alton Gilbert is the probable Dodger starter, opposed by Charlie Dugan, Mahanoy City veteran, who recently pitched and won a doubleheader.

A Slight Case of Ptomaine And a New Dodger Player

The aftermath of a wholesale case of mild ptomaine poisoning that struck the Kingston Dodgers en route from Carbondale to this city Wednesday night rendered outfielder Jerry Orleman hors de combat and caused the Brooklyn front office to rush in a new outfielder from the Shoboygan club of the Wisconsin State League.

The new outfielder is James Brophy, stocky right hander, who opened the season in Wisconsin and then was laid up for several weeks with a broken knee cap. Brophy, a well built lad of six feet, went useless in his debut last night.

Fast Fading Brooklyn Dodgers Seek Refuge at Ebbets Field

By JACK HAND (Associated Press Sports Writer)
Brooklyn's weary Dodgers, their 10-game lead sliced to four by a series of disasters in Chicago and Boston, stagger back to home cooling tonight, banking on a 700 winning record at Ebbets Field, to halt their toboggan slide.

World Series talk has evaporated and the question of the day in Flatbush is "what's the matter with the Dodgers?" The fellow who knows the answer could command a princely salary from President Branch Rickey.

While the Dodgers have been losing six of their last seven since sweeping three at St. Louis, the World Champs have racked up seven straight wins, to cut six full games of the Dodger lead.

Barrett Stops Brooks
Red Barrett, a choice target for Leo Durocher's barbs in other years, tripped the Dodgers all by himself yesterday, throwing a three-hitter and doubling to start the Braves' winning rally, 3-1. The Dodgers' Harry Taylor came up with a well pitched ball game but not good enough.

The Giants took another fall out of the injury-riddled Phillies for a third straight 5-2 win. For the second day in a row there were no Giant homers, in fact only four hits off Oscar Judd and Al Jurisich but a pair of wild pitches and an error by Jim Tabor made hits unnecessary.

Baumholtz Injured
The Reds lost more than the ball game because their ace rookie outfielder, Frank Baumholtz suffered a slight concussion in a collision with shortstop Eddie Miller while chasing a Texas leaguer. Miller received a deep cut on his chin.

Kirby Higbe lived up to his high price tag by hurling a seven-hit 3-0 shutout for Pittsburgh against Chicago. It was the first shut-out of the year and a ninth victory for "Old Hag," Ralph Kiner's 27th homer in the second inning started Hank Borowy on the way to his ninth loss.

The Boston Red Sox, who open a last ditch stand tonight against the New York Yankees whom they trail by 13½ games, warmed up with a 12-2 slaughter of Washington. While Denny Galehouse retired the first 17 men to face him in a neat six-hit effort, the Sox lambasted Early Wynn, Marino Pieretti and Scott Cary for 15 hits including Teddy Williams' 25th homer. Sam Mele, Johnny Pesky and Sam Dente each contributed three hits to the attack.

Ruffing Wins 272nd
Only 638 cash customers braved the 96-degree heat to watch the St. Louis Browns lose another one, this time to Chicago, 8-4. Red Ruffing received credit for his 272nd big league triumph with relief help from Pete Gebrian.

A scheduled Cleveland at Detroit game was rained out and the other clubs were not scheduled on the first entire daytime big league schedule on a week-day in months.

Abe Simon, who sustained two knockouts at the hands of Joe Louis, is now a licensed New York state boxing referee.

Advise Spraying Trees to Prevent Codling Growth

The second brood codling moth larvae will begin entering apples and pears soon, according to Walter Baran, assistant county agricultural agent.

Agent Baran warned orchard owners to spray the trees, if codling moth injury is quite noticeable, and added that the spray will prove equally effective against the apple maggot disease. Maggot flies are still migrating to many apple and plum orchards in large numbers, he observed.

If such is a problem, Mr. Baran said, wettable sulphur may be included in the following mixture. However, it takes from two to three days of constant wetting before a scab infection will take place.

In controlling mites, one and one-quarter pounds of DN-131 should be included in the spray formula, or a D-4 dust used.

Mr. Baran advises a spray comprised of one pound of D.D.T., 50 per cent powder added to 100 gallons of water, and wettable sulphur used at the manufacturer's directions where scab is present.

If codling moth is a threat, the D.D.T. should be increased to one and one-half pounds, which may exceed the residue tolerance, or a 5 per cent D.D.T. dust. Where codling moth is severe, he recommended the five per cent D.D.T. dust for the first application with another following in 10 to 12 days later.

In the control of codling moth and pear psylla on pear trees, a spray consisting of one pound D.D.T., 50 per cent powder, one pint of nicotine sulphate, and one pound of hydrated spray lime added to 100 gallons of water should be used.

In combating the pear psylla alone, one pint of nicotine sulphate, with from one to three pounds of hydrated spray lime added to 100 gallons of water will suffice.

D.D.T. should not be used on varieties of pears that are to be picked in the next three weeks, Mr. Baran warned. The sprays should be applied today or tomorrow, before the larvae emerge.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

Three N. T. Possible Even With a Void

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY America's Card Authority Written for NEA Service

The team-of-four championship at the recent Mississippi Valley Tournament in St. Louis, Mo., was won by Charles H. Goren of Philadelphia, John E. Simon and Gordon Scherck of St. Louis, and Mrs. David C. Carter of Kansas City, Mo.

John Simon does not play a great deal of duplicate bridge, and the fact that he prefers rubber bridge is borne out by his bidding on today's hand during the St. Louis tournament. Only a rubber bridge player dares to bid three trumps with a void suit.

However, after getting into the contract, and especially when void in his partner's suit, the rubber bridge player would decide that he had better make it. Making today's hand helped Simon and his teammates to win the championship.

Simon (South) won the opening diamond lead in dummy with the ten and took the queen of clubs. He cashed the ace of clubs and led another club, hoping to see the suit break. East won with the jack of clubs and returned the five of hearts. This trick was won in dummy with the king and Simon led a heart back from dummy, fessing the ten-spot.

Another club was led, East winning with the king. East returned another heart, Simon won with the ace and cashed his good club. West had made the mistake of blanking down to the ace of diamonds and the king-queen of spades, so Simon led the king of spades, forcing West to win. When West led the king of spades, Simon let him hold that trick.

Then the ten of spades was led, Simon won with dummy's jack and cashed the ace of spades for his ninth trick.

The World Today

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Civil wars in Europe and Asia, bloody reprisals in Palestine and counter reprisals in England, the eastern and western blocs gunning for each other at close range; all these untoward events and many more make one view with respect General Dwight Eisenhower's remark in Billings, Montana, the other day that "it looks more and more as though the United States will have to accept a two-world concept when we have been working for a one-world plan."

About that time Attorney General Tom Clark delivered into the same subject in a speech at the International Sunday School convention at Des Moines. He said the clear problem posed before mankind is this: Can the peoples of this earth live in world brotherhood? If they cannot, then the teachings and accomplishments of the last 2,000 years will be for naught. Our civilization will disappear in a series of atomic explosions.

Why is the world divided against itself? Clarke answered that bluntly: "The time has passed when we can dismiss the spread of atheistic Communism as a phenomenon of the lunatic fringe. No longer do we visualize the destroyers of democracy and Christianity as a bomb-carrying, bewhiskered man in heavy boots. Today, he is streamlined, in all kinds of guises, sometimes behind a democratic front. The principles of Christianity imply justice to all. The tenets of the police state are just the contrary. They pass on to their destruction over the changing whim of dictators—and the ruin that follows is great."

That being the situation, where do we go from here? I'm reminded of a story I heard as a lad in my Vermont village. A farmer lost a valuable horse which had jumped the fence of its pasture and wandered away. Neighbors joined the farmer in the search, but without result. Finally an ancient gaffer announced that he would find the horse, and hobbled off on his cane amidst laughter. Before long he came back leading the animal, and members of the general-store club demanded how he found it.

"Well," he said, "I went and sat down on a rock in the horse's pasture and asked myself: 'Where would you go if you were a horse?' And I decided that I would go over by the old grist mill on the creek, where the grass is green. I went to the mill and the horse was there."

So, having used a bit of horse-sense, what is the answer to our search? Attorney General Clark says: "To put it in the language of our day—we must accept and practice the teachings of the Nazarine—or else."

Many men of many lands are thinking along the same line. President Truman, in a message the other day to the Baptist World Congress in Copenhagen, urged spiritual as well as political and economic cooperation among nations to achieve a peaceful world community.

Former Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota, who also participated in the Des Moines Sunday school convention, told a press conference that there has been a strong resurgence to religion in Europe since the war. He recently made an extensive tour abroad. I also noted this in numerous countries during my last European tour.

In many parts of the world men are turning back to spiritual and moral values. Religious conferences are being held in both hemispheres. Here in America at the moment over 600 delegates from thirty-two and numerous foreign countries are attending the North American Assembly for moral rearmament at Mackinac Island, Michigan. A similar M.R.A. meeting is being held in Caux, Switzerland. Even in countries which have anti-religious governments, the ferment of religion is at work. Upon this trend many statesmen and observers are pinning their hopes of solving our present difficulties and arriving at one world.

Columbia Nurse Students Will Train in Kingston

Dr. Willis is a health officer in training and was assigned to the County Health Department by the State Department of Health. He was assigned as the doctor in charge of the Olympic games held recently by the City Recreation Department and has been active in other health functions of the county.

Reben Reports Growth Of Hardware Store

The second anniversary of Reben's Hardware store, 45 North Front street, which is currently observed with a sale, also marks considerable progress in the business Robert Reben, owner, said today.

Only the store space of the building was used when the business first opened, its owner said, but in the two years of its existence it has expanded to include the floor above and the upper floor of an adjacent building. The additional space and that of the basement is used now mainly for stock, but it is planned to use considerable of this space for sales purposes in the future.

The first anniversary of the store was observed at the same time last year. The sale this year features 15 per cent discounts.

Mrs. Reben has assisted her husband in the business since its beginning.

Nicknames on Rings

An old custom of engraving nicknames and date inside the betrothal ring is coming back. Realizations, say jewelers, are that engravings are longer and the new wider mountings for the diamond give more surface.
